Kerry Vows Stronger U.S.

Aiming at Bush, promises to build military, restore alliances

BOSTON | Sen. John Kerry on Thursday challenged President George W. Bush over the war in Iraq and pledged an administration where "America never goes to war because we want to, we only go to war because we have to."

"I defended this country as a young man and I will defend it as president," the Massachusetts senator, a decorated Vietnam War veteran, said in remarks prepared for delivery in his climactic speech to the Democratic National Convention after Express' deadline Thursday night.

Vowing to build a stronger military at home and strong alliances overseas, Kerry said the nation then will be able to tell terrorists: "You will lose and we will win."

Kerry's speech was to cap the four-day national convention designed to present Kerry to millions of undecided voters as a man tested by war and ready to take command in an era of terrorism.

He and vice presidential running mate John Edwards depart Friday for a 3,500-mile, coast-to-coast campaign swing through 21 states.

♦ And now the hard part: Kerry must convince skeptical swing voters he's stronger than Bush | Page 10

In remarks aimed at a nationwide television audience as well as the thousands of delegates packed into the FleetCenter, Kerry painted a portrait of a nation suffering economically after four years of Republican rule.

Pre-convention polls showed Kerry even to slightly ahead of Bush, a strong position for a challenger. Whatever sort of surge in support he may receive from his convention, Republicans hope to counter next month when they meet in New York to nominate Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney for re-election. TRAFFIC STOPS | They Can Drive 55 Kansas City, Mo., police have taken a licking for a new program that rewards motorists who drive safely by stopping them and giving them coupons for free ice cream. Sgt. Don Jantzen said police have put the program on hold after residents complained. Paula Talley was rewarded Monday for wearing her seat belt and yielding to traffic, but she feared the stop would make her late for work. "My job probably wouldn't have cared about free ice cream," she said. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

CRIME

Just Desserts

They thought they were getting away with loot. Instead, they got lunch. Two men face robbery charges after showing up at a Lockport, N.Y., tractor supply store at closing time. Authorities say the pair demanded the night bank deposit bag, grabbed a blue bag from one employee and got away. Turns out the bag was the employee's lunch, not the deposit bag. The men were arrested a little while later. (AP)

BAD IDEAS

The Sinister Triple-Dog Dare

Two men who were arrested for walking through a Wal-Mart in Scottsbluff, Neb., while wearing women's thong underwear blamed the stunt on a "triple-dog dare," authorities said. The men, ages 35 and 36, bought two pairs of underwear at the store Tuesday, went into a bathroom and came out wearing only the thongs and T-shirts. They were nabbed in the parking lot. They will not be prosecuted, authorities said. (AP)

MYSTERIES

Whole Hog

Around these parts, they are calling it Hogzilla: a 12-foot-long wild hog recently killed on a plantation and now quickly becoming a part of local legend in Alapaha, Ga. The plantation's owner claims the feral hog weighed 1,000 pounds and had 9-inch tusks. But few people have actually seen the hog — the only proof being a photo that shows the dead beast hanging from a rope. Chris Griffin, 31, said he killed the hog last month at the River Oak Plantation, where he is a hunting guide, and has been showing off the picture around this small farming community ever since. He says he and Ken Holyoak, owner of the plantation, buried the beast on the property. (AP)

THE NEW HIP THING

Retro Phones!

Remember when cell phones were these cumbersome instruments that didn't neatly fit into your pocket? If British-based designer Nicholas Roope has his way, clunky will be in again. Roope unveiled his "Pokia" headset attached to a mobile phone in London on Wednesday — basically a vintage telephone receiver extension that plugs into a cell. The idea, odd as it may seem, has thrust Roope into the realm of notoriety and the pages of an Italian style magazine and The New York Times. "The idea is really simple, but the reaction is always really strong," he told Reuters. (EXPRESS)

HONESTY

Doesn't Anyone Like Money Anymore?

One man's trash is another man's — money? A backhoe operator in Columbus, Ga., found $46,000 in $20 bills, wrapped in clear plastic bags, while moving garbage at a landfill, authorities said Tuesday. "It was found buried in garbage that had been there for some time," Deputy City Manager Isaiah Hugley told the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer. The employee was digging trenches and moving bags of garbage when he spotted the money Friday. He notified his supervisor, and the cash was picked up and stored by local police. (AP)

Gov. Pataki Vetoes Increase In State's Minimum Wage

Gov. George Pataki vetoed a bill Thursday that would have raised the state's hourly minimum wage from $5.15 to $7.15 by 2007. Pataki said he favors a minimum wage increase, but on the national level, where it currently also is $5.15. He said raising it in New York would leave businesses at a competitive disadvantage and drive jobs to bordering New Jersey and Pennsylvania, which also have the $5.15 minimum. (AP)

U.S. Lost Track of Nearly $1B in Iraq

Audit finds incomplete records for expenses tied to reconstruction

WASHINGTON | U.S. civilian authorities in Baghdad failed to keep good track of nearly $1 billion in Iraqi money spent for reconstruction projects and can't produce records to show whether they got some services and products they paid for, an audit concludes.

The former Coalition Provisional Authority paid nearly $200,000 for 15 police trucks without confirming they were delivered, and auditors have not located them, the report from the CPA's Inspector General said. Officials also didn't have records to justify the $24.7 million pricetag for replacing Iraqi currency which used to carry Saddam Hussein's portrait, the report said.

The report, released in Iraq late Wednesday, is the first formal audit of contracting procedures under the CPA, which oversaw billions in reconstruction spending that critics say was doled out without proper controls. The agency's defenders say it did the best it could given the pressure of operating in a war zone and trying to get reconstruction going quickly.

The one-star general overseeing reconstruction contracts in Iraq said in response to the audit that the lack of documentation didn't prove the money was wasted.

"We believe the contracts awarded with Iraqi funds were for the sole benefit of the Iraqi people, without exception," Army Brig. Gen. Stephen M. Seay wrote to the inspector general.

Investigators reviewed 43 contracts and found 29 had incomplete documentation. MATT KELLEY (AP)

'Double-Helix' Co-Discoverer Dies

SAN DIEGO | Nobel Prize-winning scientist Francis Crick, who co-discovered the spiral, "double-helix" structure of DNA in 1953 and opened the way for everything from DNA fingerprinting to the genetic detection of diseases, has died. He was 88.

Crick died Wednesday after a battle with colon cancer, according to the Salk Institute, the research body where Crick worked in recent years.

The British-born Crick was 36 and working at the University of Cambridge's Cavendish Laboratory in 1953 when he and the American-born James Watson, just 24, struck upon the idea that the DNA molecule resembles a twisted ladder. Crick and Watson were awarded the Nobel in medicine in 1962.

In person Crick was provocative, quick-witted and charming, though he rarely consented to interviews. He was averse to attention of any sort, he said, not because he was anti-social but because it cut into his thinking time. (AP)

School Violence Feared

CDC finds teens skip due to safety concerns

ATLANTA | The number of U.S. teenagers skipping school for fear of getting hurt climbed over the past decade, even though violence in schools actually declined, the government said Thursday.

More than one out of every 20 high school students — 5.4 percent — skipped at least one day of school because of safety concerns in 2003, according to the survey from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That is up from 4.4 percent in 1993.

At the same time, CDC statistics indicate an overall drop in school violence over the past decade.

For example, one in 11 students surveyed in 2003 said they were threatened with or injured by a weapon on school property in the preceding year. About one in 14 students were similarly threatened or injured in 1993.

The CDC surveyed more than 10,000 public and private high school students nationwide. (AP)

Defense: Bryant's Accuser Received $17K From Fund

DENVER | Kobe Bryant's defense team says the woman accusing him of rape has received more than $17,000 from a victims' compensation fund in what it calls a rich incentive to pursue a false claim against the NBA star, according to a court transcript released on Thursday.

The 20-year-old woman would be ineligible for at least $17,000 she has already received if she lied about the alleged rape, defense attorney Pamela Mackey argued in a June 21 hearing. She said the woman would have to reimburse the fund if lies were discovered — even more incentive to go forward with the case.

Mackey said the compensation records should be admitted as evidence because they show the accuser had a financial interest in continuing her participation in the case.

It was unclear whether the compensation information will be allowed as evidence. District Judge Terry Ruckriegle released the partial transcript along with a sealed ruling on use of the material.

Prosecution spokeswoman Krista Flannigan declined to comment on Mackey's arguments, but said the accuser remains determined to go forward with the case.

"Her resolve has not changed," she said. JON SANCHE (AP)

Official Charged in Cockfighting Ring

COLUMBIA, S.C. | South Carolina's agriculture commissioner was arrested Thursday on charges of taking at least $20,000 in payoffs to protect an illegal cockfighting ring from the law.

Charles Sharpe, 65, is accused of accepting the money from an organization involved in breeding and raising birds for cockfighting in exchange for helping the group avoid legal trouble. Sharpe pleaded innocent and was freed on bail.

Among the charges, U.S. Attorney J. Strom Thurmond Jr. said Sharpe escorted a law enforcement officer to a cockfighting arena and falsely told the officer that the fighting there was legal because it was done only to test the birds. The arena was shut down last November. (AP)

Iraqis Postpone Conference

Officials say delay isn't due to security concerns

BAGHDAD | Iraq authorities abruptly put off Thursday a national conference of political, religious and civic leaders considered a crucial step on the road to democracy amid disarray over choosing delegates and boycott threats by key factions.

The announcement came a day after a car bombing killed 70 people, the worst single attack since U.S. officials transferred power to an interim government last month.

While organizers had expressed concern that the conference would be a magnet for terrorists, they insisted that security worries played no part in their decision to delay.

"We have full confidence in our security organizations," said Fouad Masoum, head of the conference's organizing committee.

The gathering, which had been scheduled to start Saturday, appeared to be far behind schedule even before the two-week delay was announced. No venue had been disclosed and there were no outward signs in Baghdad of preparations for the 1,000-person gathering.

Organizers said they agreed to the postponement at the request of U.N. officials, who wanted time to encourage wider participation.

The three-day conference is to bring together delegates from Iraq's 18 provinces to help choose a 100-member interim assembly with the power to approve the budget, appoint Cabinet replacements and help guide the country toward elections in January. JAMIE TARABAY (AP)

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

→ Iraqi Prime Minister Ayad Allawi urged Muslim nations on Thursday to dispatch troops to Iraq to help defeat the insurgency. Saudi Arabia, Pakistan, Yemen and Bahrain already have offered to help under certain conditions.

→ France dropped its objection to having a NATO training mission inside Iraq but refused Thursday to accept Washington's demand that its commander be an American. A French diplomat described the issue as the "last hitch" holding up agreement on the mission.

Official: New Barrier Route To Still Push Into West Bank

Israel's West Bank barrier will cut into the West Bank to encircle major Jewish settlements, despite plans to reroute it closer to the country's pre-1967 frontier, a Defense Ministry official said Thursday. The disclosure by Nezah Mashiah, head of the barrier project in the Defense Ministry, was a sign that recent international and domestic setbacks would not deter Israel from keeping Jewish settlements on the "Israeli side" of the barrier. U.S. efforts to account for American soldiers missing in action during the Vietnam War will resume in September in the country's Central Highlands, which has been off-limits to most foreigners since a 2001 government crackdown on protests by ethnic tribespeople. An agreement to restart the search was reached Wednesday in a meeting between visiting Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense Jerry Jennings and provincial leaders in Pleiku, the capital of Gia Lai province, the Pentagon said in a statement Thursday. # Saddam Nixes Test For Cancer

BAGHDAD | Deposed Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein suffers from a chronic prostate infection but has rebuffed suggestions that he undergo a biopsy to test him for cancer, Iraq's human rights minister said in an interview aired Thursday.

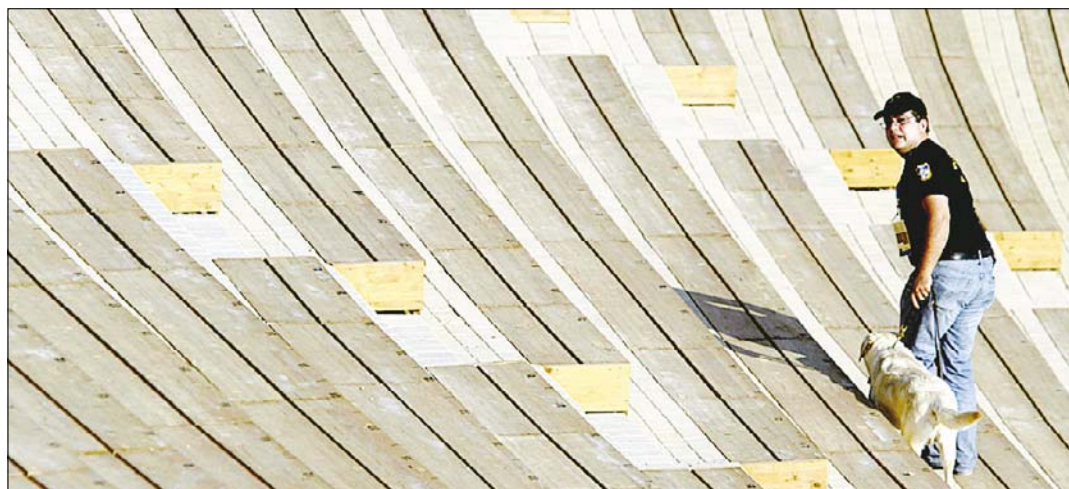

A battery of other tests show Saddam is otherwise in fine health, Bakhtiar Amin told Al-Jazeera.

Prostate infections are common, occurring in 35 percent of men over 50, but are not linked to cancer. But routine screening for prostate cancer is becoming more common.

Since his capture last December, Saddam has been held in U.S. detention at an undisclosed location. News media have reported that his health was deteriorating — which the U.S. military denied Thursday.

The Red Cross, which has access to Saddam, said Thursday it had no information about a downturn in his health. RAWYA RAGEH (AP)

Pakistan Nabs Suspect Sought by U.S.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Pakistan has arrested a Tanzanian al Qaeda suspect wanted by the United States in the 1998 bombings at U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, the interior minister said Friday.

Ahmed Khalfan Ghailani — who is on the FBI's list of 22 most wanted terrorists, with a reward of up to $25 million on his head — was arrested Sunday in the eastern city of Gujrat along with at least 15 other people, Interior Minister Faisal Saleh Hayyat said.

A U.S. official confirmed the Ghailani's capture.

Ghailani, thought to be in his early 30s, was indicted on Dec. 16, 1998 in the Southern District of New York for his alleged role in the embassy bombings, which killed more than 200 people, including 12 Americans. PAUL HAVEN (AP)

U.S. Urges Action on Sudan

But bows to pressure, dropping 'sanctions' from draft resolution

UNITED NATIONS | Bowing to opposition on the U.N. Security Council, the United States dropped the word "sanctions" from a draft resolution on Sudan on Thursday, but kept a threat of economic action if Khartoum fails to disarm Arab militias blamed for widespread atrocities in the western region of Darfur.

The Security Council was to vote Friday. Officials from several delegations, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they expected the minimum nine "yes" votes could be achieved and a veto avoided.

Pakistan, China and Russia have argued that Sudan needs more time to end the killings, rapes and pillaging by the pro-government militias, which some have called ethnic cleansing and even genocide.

The Americans insisted the changes did not weaken the resolution, saying they hoped for unanimous approval to send a message to Khartoum that it will face consequences. But aid agencies said it wasn't tough enough and warned the crisis was deteriorating rapidly.

The Darfur conflict stems from long-standing tensions between nomadic Arab tribes and their African neighbors over resources. Those tensions exploded in February 2003 when African rebels took up arms. Arab militias then began a brutal campaign to drive out the black Africans. KIM GAMEL (AP) Displaced Sudanese women wait in line for food donated by the U.N.'s World Food Program in a refugee camp in northern Darfur. Pressure is mounting on Sudan's government to disarm Arab militias blamed for widespread atrocities in the region.

REPORT SURFACES OF IMMOLATION IN DARFUR

AN AFRICAN UNION monitoring team has reported that militias "believed to be Janjaweed" — the pro-government Arab fighters — chained civilians together and set them on fire earlier this month in Sudan's western Darfur region.

The immolation came during a July 3 attack on the village of Suleia, the monitoring team said in its report, a copy of which was obtained by the AP on Thursday. It did not say how many were killed.

The report also said the village of Ehada had been attacked, which it called "an unwarranted and unprovoked attack on the civilian population by the Janjaweed." (AP)

Court Exonerates General In '93 Bosnian Massacre

THE HAGUE, NETHERLANDS | A U.N. war crimes tribunal Thursday ordered a Bosnian Croat commander's early release from prison after clearing him of responsibility in a 1993 massacre.

Overturning a ruling by a lower chamber, the five-member panel of judges dismissed 16 of 19 war crimes charges against Gen. Thiomir Blaskic, exonerating him of ordering ethnic bloodshed in Bosnia. The judges upheld lesser charges of illegal detainment and inhumane treatment of Muslim prisoners. His sentence was reduced from 45 to nine years.

The ruling found that prosecutors failed to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Blaskic planned or even knew about the infamous 1993 Ahmici massacre of more than 100 Bosnian Muslims during the 1992-95 war. Tribunal President Theodor Meron ordered Blaskic be set free on Monday. ANTHONY DEUTSCH (AP)

Youths Pay Tribute To Warsaw Heroes

WARSAW, POLAND | Polish Boy Scouts spent 2 1/2 hours crawling through 700 yards of storm sewers Thursday, retracing the path of insurgents who rose up 60 years ago against the Nazi occupiers of Warsaw.

The journey was designed to mark the Aug. 1, 1944, uprising that killed 200,000 Poles, including 20,000 teenage fighters.

"This was our homage to them," 20-year-old Tadeusz Motylewski said after emerging from underground. MONIKA SCISLOWSKA (AP)

Metro Defends Candy-Bar Arrest

Woman detained for finishing PayDay in station

WASHINGTON | The same day a report detailed the arrest of a local woman for finishing a candy bar in a Metro station, the District's subway system defended its officer's actions.

In Thursday's editions, The Washington Post reported that 45-year-old Stephanie Willett was handcuffed, searched and held for three hours after she had finished chewing a candy bar at Metro Center on July 16.

"If she had stopped eating, it would have been the end of it and if she had just stopped for the issuance of a citation, she never would have been locked up," said Transit Police Chief Polly Hanson.

Willett said an officer saw her eating a PayDay on her way down an escalator and warned her to finish it before entering the station. She nodded and stuffed the last bit into her mouth before throwing the wrapper into a trash can.

But Willett, of Bowie, Md., says the officer followed her back into the station and she was arrested after making a remark.

"I said, 'Don't you have some other crimes you have to take care of,'" Willett told WTOP Radio in an interview. The officer asked for identification, but Willett kept walking. She said she was then frisked — including under her shirt — and handcuffed.

Hanson said frisking is common police procedure during an arrest.

Statue of D.C. Panda Disappears

WASHINGTON | PandaMania seems to have infected someone just a little too much.

Officials said Thursday that one of the panda sculptures dotting the District's streets this summer has been stolen. It is the worst crime to hit the exhibit, with other sculptures suffering from vandalism.

The District of Columbia Commission on the Arts and Humanities is offering a $1,000 reward for its return.

The weekend disappearance of the 250-pound plastic composite sculpture entitled "Climbing Pandas" — along with its 650-

Besides the missing panda, 14 others have been vandalized, including a dozen that have been repaired.

Sniper Briefly Escapes From Waist Restraints

FAIRFAX, VA. | A court hearing for convicted sniper John Allen Muhammad was delayed briefly Thursday after Muhammad wriggled out of a chain strapped around his waist during a recess.

Muhammad was placed back into restraints without incident, but for a few minutes he was in the courtroom with a lengthy chain gathered in his hands that could have been used as a weapon.

Muhammad was then taken from the courtroom and returned about 20 minutes later, with the chain again around his waist.

When court resumed, Circuit Judge Jonathan Thacher admonished Muhammad.

Muhammad asked to address the judge, but Thacher advised him to first talk to his lawyers before speaking. After Muhammad conferred with his lawyers, defense lawyer Peter Greenspun said that "Mr. Muhammad would describe the circumstances differently," but did not explain further.

During Thursday's hearing, Thacher rejected defense requests to bar Fairfax County Commonwealth's Attorney Robert F. Horan Jr. from prosecuting Muhammad. Muhammad's attorneys said Horan should be removed based on arguments he made while prosecuting Muhammad's accomplice, Lee Boyd Malvo. MATTHEW BARAKAT (AP)

Wal-Mart to Fight Zoning Bill in Md.

Montgomery County proposal seeks to limit size of 'big box' stores

ROCKVILLE, MD. | Retail giant Wal-Mart Stores Inc. is getting ready to fight a proposal for zoning regulations in Montgomery County that would block the company from building a superstore.

Wal-Mart has no immediate plans to build a such a store there, but has gathered about 2,000 signatures on a petition calling the proposal "anti-competitive and anti-consumer," and assembled a coalition to convince the county council to vote down the measure, which is expected to be introduced in September.

"We don't want to lose these battles," said Wal-Mart spokeswoman Mia Masten. She said the regulations could block the chain's expansion in the state.

The proposal would require chains to obtain a special exemption to build a store larger than 130,000 square feet. Wal-Mart's superstores are between 145,000 and 210,000 square feet.

Dozens of local jurisdictions have passed restrictions limiting so-called "big box" stores.

Montgomery County Executive Douglas Duncan has said such stores create more traffic and damage the environment. (AP)

Oil Prices Dip as Yukos Gets Relief

NEW YORK | Oil prices eased Thursday but remained above $42 a barrel, a day after hitting a 21-year high in U.S. trading because of a threat by Russian authorities to shut down most of the production from that country's largest oil company.

Russia's Justice Ministry said Thursday it had lifted a freeze affecting three subsidiaries of the Yukos oil company. Yukos, which produces 2 percent of the world's oil, had said those orders could shut off the production flow within days.

U.S. light crude fell just 15 cents to $42.75 a barrel Thursday on the New York Mercantile Exchange, easing off Wednesday's spike to an intraday high of $43.05 — the highest level since the Nymex began trading the light, sweet crude. (AP)

Democratic Convention | 2004

CONVENTION CACOPHONY

A sampling of what was said on and off the Democratic Convention stage, as overheard by reporters.

“Virginia has been wandering in the Republican desert for 40 years.

... This year, our wandering is over.”

— VIRGINIA GOV. MARK WARNER, whose state last went to a Democratic presidential candidate in 1964.

“Issues are fine. Winning is great.”

— GREGG GALLO, a gay delegate from Shoreline, Wash., on hot-button issues, like abortion and gay rights, being pushed to the margins at the convention.

“Tonight, we begin a journey to ensure that equal rights means everybody, by electing John Kerry president.”

— D.C. DEL. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON, speaking on the lack of representation in Congress for citizens of the District of Columbia.

And Now, the Campaign

Kerry still must sell himself to undecided voters

BOSTON | Reminding Americans he's been tested by war, John Kerry sought to ease doubts about whether he's tough enough to be commander in chief in an era of terrorism. He also tried to exploit President Bush's political weakness by raising questions about the invasion of Iraq.

In the most important speech of his long presidential campaign, Kerry went before the nation with words intended to show he would be a steady leader and — in a swipe at Bush — would not go to war without good reasons.

On edge about terrorism, voters trust Bush over Kerry by a wide margin to keep the country safe. But Americans also are pessimistic about Iraq, where more than 900 U.S. soldiers have died and Bush's justification for the invasion has been undercut by investigations in Congress and the Sept. 11 commission.

Less than 100 days before the election, Kerry is in stronger shape than any presidential challenger in a quarter-century, in a virtual tie with Bush and likely to get a boost from this week's attention.

By a host of measures, Americans are unhappy with Bush. Only about four in 10 support Bush's handling of Iraq and his economic policies. While the economy is growing strong, there has been a net loss of more than 1 million jobs under Bush.

Despite the convention's high spirits, though, Democrats are worried. They are unsure whether Kerry can beat the notion — reinforced by nearly $100 million in Republican ads — that he's an indecisive liberal, that he would weaken national security.

Bush's campaign strategist Matthew Dowd says Kerry has failed to sell himself. “They've spent over $100 million. No challenger has spent that kind of money to introduce himself to the public and still be in such a weak position,” Dowd said, acknowledging that Bush's own approval rating hovers at 50 percent or less.

The electorate is divided and polarized and a lot of voters already have made up their minds. About 20 states are up for grabs. “You're talking about impacting less than 10 percent,” Dowd said. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

REACHING OUT: John Kerry, seen here in Norfolk, Va., this week, must win over undecided voters if he's going to clinch a close race against President Bush.

Smithsonian to Delegates: Please Give Us Your Stuff

BOSTON | History is roaming the aisles at the Democratic National Convention, getting in people's faces, asking them for buttons, lusting after everything that isn't nailed down, as well as some things that are.

Harry and Larry are a Smithsonian duo intent on preserving for the ages the signs, shirts, hats and any other memorabilia they can talk Democrats into handing over.

Curators Harry Rubenstein and Larry Bird are expert schmoozers as well as scavengers. They covetously eye everything from that lady's pink scarf labeled “Give Bush a Pink Slip” (she happily hands it over) to the tall state standards on the floor (no dice, not yet).

“We know we're on to the right thing if they don't want to part with it,” Harry says. And these guys are tenacious. After all, Harry says somberly, “We're trying to document and preserve the democratic process.” He lightens up and adds, “Lofty words for an odd button.” CALVIN WOODWARD (AP)

PROTESTS | IN CUSTODY

RESTRAINED: A Boston police officer holds down a protester during demonstrations outside the FleetCenter on Thursday. After four days of relative calm, some 400 demonstrators clashed with police near the Democratic convention site. Three people were arrested in the melee, officials said.

Loyal Opposition

Notes and quotes from GOP officials:

STAR POWER:

Rudolph Giuliani joined Republican efforts to counter the Democratic convention on Thursday, accusing the party of spending four days in Boston running away from Kerry's record. “Everything and anything has been discussed but their record,” he said. (AP)

Entertainment Weekend

CREATURE FEATURE: Joaquin Phoenix plays the sturdy, taciturn Lucius, whose good intentions invite evil into "The Village."

Fear Itself

'The Village' is more uneasy than twisty

FILM | The most impressive revelation in M. Night Shyamalan's "The Village" may be Bryce Dallas Howard. The daughter of director Ron Howard delivers a radiant leading-lady debut that dominates the film and its excellent ensemble, which includes Joaquin Phoenix, William Hurt, Sigourney Weaver and Adrien Brody.

Unlike writer-director Shyamalan's previous films —

"The Sixth Sense," "Unbreakable" and "Signs" — the twists are not the payoff of "The Village." The rewards run much deeper in this simple story laced with a rich subtext and, like classic fairy tales, suffused with twilight terror and repressed carnality.

"The Village" is Shyamalan's best film yet, demanding repeated viewings and endless discussion about the morality and implications of the characters' choices.

A date on a tombstone establishes the year as 1897, yet "The Village" exists in a timeless void. A child is buried, a father grieves, a tightknit community gathers for a mournful meal, prefaced by a heartfelt mantra from village elder Edward Walker (Hurt): "We are grateful for the time we have been given."

But this village has its boogeymen, carnivorous creatures that live in the surrounding woods. The villagers do not venture out, and the beasts stay away from town.

The balance is disrupted when Lucius Hunt (Phoenix) makes a test incursion into the forest — he wants to journey to the towns beyond the woods for medicines to prevent more young people from dying — and the creatures respond with a frightening foray into the village.

Calamitous circumstance involving Lucius, his spitfire sweetheart Ivy (Howard), the blind daughter of Edward Walker, and village idiot Noah (Brody) forces an expedition to the outside world, which the elders forsook as an unwholesome and violent place.

"The Village" raises compelling questions about the lengths parents might go to shield their children from harm, and whether isolating the young ones from the phantoms in the closet might simply unleash the monsters under the bed.

A Lovely 'Garden'

FILM | What a wonderful surprise "Garden State" is, from an unexpected source: Zach Braff, star of the sitcom "Scrubs," who's the film's writer, director and star.

Braff has produced a film of warmth and wit, subtlety and sweetness. And he's only 29 years old.

Braff plays Andrew Largeman, an almost-famous TV actor living in Los Angeles who returns home to New Jersey after nine years to bury his mother.

There, he runs into friends he hasn't seen in years, who boisterously greet him by his nickname, Large.

Braff really nails the sensation of returning home after being away and awkwardly reuniting with the people who never left. He realizes sadly that he's at a point we all reach: when the place you grew up is no longer your home, just a place that looks familiar and holds some of your stuff.

Braff reveals slowly that Large's father, a psychiatrist, has kept him medicated for most of his life. Only when he comes back to New Jersey does he learn to connect with people again, or at least one person in particular — Sam (Natalie Portman), a perky, self-professed compulsive liar who becomes his impromptu sidekick.

It doesn't take long for Large and Sam to change each other's lives, which sounds like corny romantic-comedy fodder. But Braff strikes the right tone all the time, and takes the story in places that get unpredictably, but never unbelievably weird. The result is charming and funny, and sometimes disarmingly poignant. CHRISTY LEMIRE (AP)

KEN REGAN

The China Syndrome

A remake of a great political thriller goes to too-familiar places

FILM | Jonathan Demme's retooling of the thriller about brainwashed soldiers as puppets in an assassination conspiracy disappoints, despite the filmmaker's efforts to bring new relevance to the Cold War saga by setting it amid our own war on terrorism.

But not relevant enough: Demme and screenwriters Daniel Pyne and Dean Geogaris turn to an easy target, making big business the bad guy as an anonymous outfit called Manchurian Global connives to put its dupe in the White House.

"The Manchurian Candidate" updates the initial action from the Korean War (in John Frankenheimer's 1962 original, itself adapted from Richard Condon's pot-boiler) to the early 1990s as Capt. Ben Marco (Washington) leads his men on a reconnaissance mission in Kuwait just before the Gulf War.

The U.S. troops are ambushed, and Marco is knocked unconscious. Sgt. Raymond Shaw (Liev Schreiber) takes command, single-handedly fighting off the assault and leading the survivors of his lost patrol to safety.

Awarded the Medal of Honor, Shaw is elected to Congress. Through the machinations of his mother, U.S. Sen. Eleanor Shaw (Meryl Streep), he becomes the vice presidential candidate in a post-Sept. 11 campaign where the current administration is assailed for its handling of the war on terrorism.

Whenever asked, Marco and the other soldiers lapse into mechanical adulation of the sergeant as the finest, bravest man on the planet. Yet they're all troubled by dreams of bloody surgical procedures and images of Shaw suffocating one of their fallen comrades.

The remake plays out predictably, with little suspense. The plot changes stretch credibility when Shaw begins running around carrying out misdeeds robotically. Apparently, in this post-Sept. 11 world, security is lax and a vice presidential candidate does not attract attention when he's out on his own.

Washington and Schreiber muster nice kinship as comrades now at odds. Streep steals most of her scenes as the mother-knows-best puppetmaster; if there were an Academy Award for chewing ice ominously, Streep would be a shoo-in. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

The Day the Music Died

UNPLUGGED | Citing "a sluggish start," promoters of Live on Penn have pulled the plug on the outdoor concert series after just three of its 10 scheduled shows.

"We thank everyone for their support, but as shown by festivals like Lollapalooza, the concert industry is off to a sluggish start this summer ... and we're no longer able to continue," director of marketing Howard Kitrosser said.

Held Saturday afternoons on a closed stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue outside the National Gallery of Art, Live on Penn debuted last summer and was an immediate success, luring large crowds for $3 shows featuring Blues Traveler, Wyclef Jean and Live, along with a mix of local and regional artists.

This year, admission shot to $7 at the gate; advance tickets were $5 through the series' Web site.

LAST YEAR'S MODEL: Blues Traveler reeled in fans to Live on Penn, but it didn't last.

The schedule was also problematic. Highlights included Grammy-nominated rock band Fountains of Wayne, alt-country heroes Old 97s and perennial local favorites Virginia Coalition — all of whom have headlined the 9:30 Club in recent months at a much higher price.

But most lineups were based on a mix of '80s nostalgia acts like Violent Femmes and The Smithereens, and veteran alt-rock bands such as Tonic and Better Than Ezra.

Live on Penn's promoters are in good company this summer. The Lollapalooza festival was scratched after substandard ticket sales, and some tours, including Dave Matthews and Ozzfest, have been playing to less-than-full houses.

Reviews by The Washington Post's Ann Hornaday, Stephen Hunter, Michael O'Sullivan and Desson Thomson.

THE BOURNE SUPREMACY (PG-13, 110 minutes) Matt Damon, repising his role as Jason Bourne, is outwardly chilly and ruthless by passionately engaged. He has one simple mission: The former CIA assassin has to keep one step away from an assailant, and possibly more. It's great to see an action movie that take the dirty business seriously. If Bourne seems like a cold being, that's because he's an instrument of survival. (DT)

CATWOMAN (PG-13, 104 minutes) Halle Berry does a good job as the transformed heroine, and she has a handsome, believable love interest in Benjamin Bratt. But "Catwoman" is dragged down by a paper-thin story, the predictable number of fight scenes executed at equally predictable intervals and stock, unmemorable characters. The worst of these is Sharon Stone's Laurel Hedare, a former model who becomes Patience's arch-nemesis. During an embarrassing catfight, Berry hurls Stone through huge photographic prints of her own younger image, leaving the older actress in a heap, her face horrifically scarred. "Catwoman" concludes with a dispiriting hiss. (AH)

Muzaffer Ozdemir plays the citified Mahmud, who takes in his rural cousin.

DISTANT (unrated, 110 minutes) This may be a Turkish variation on the old country-mouse, city-mouse fable, about an urban sophisticate (Muzaffer Ozdemir) suddenly forced to live in intimacy with his cousin from the boondocks (Emin Toprak). Or it might be a Muslim's denunciation of those who have embraced the Western lifestyle at the expense of their souls. Either way, Nuri Bilge Ceylan's film is straightforward, droll, brutally honest and arresting. (SH)

THE DOOR IN THE FLOOR (R, 111 minutes) Kim Basinger and Jeff Bridges star as Marion and Ted Cole, a couple coping — or not — with unspeakable loss. On the verge of their breakup, Ted hires an Exeter student, Eddie (Jon Foster), as his assistant for the summer, and the teenager and

Marion gravitate toward each other. Tod Williams' film doesn't deepen as it progresses but becomes flimsier and more trivial, finally succumbing to an awkwardly executed tonal shift. (AH)

I, ROBOT (R, 114 minutes) The year is 2035 and Chicago police detective Del Spooner (Will Smith) is called to investigate the apparent suicide of robotics pioneer Alfred Lanning (James Cromwell). Spooner suspects that one of Lanning's creations had a hand in his death. Soon he's on the trail of one robot that leads him on a high-tech goose chase. While Smith is given plenty of car chases and death-defying predicaments to show off his signature brand of offhand derring-do, the movie at its core has to do with relationships. (SH)

TIME OF THE WOLF (unrated, 110 minutes) Apocalyptic and post-apocalyptic flicks are an institution of moviegoing banality.

There's a certain documentary sense of reality to Michael Haneke's post-Armageddon drama in which a family (led by Isabelle Huppert) on the run after an unspecified global disaster meets a young drifter (Hakim Taleb) and a band of survivors. But in the end it feels like an unscripted, improvisatory experiment. (DT)

Rolling Stone

“‘THE MANCHURIAN CANDIDATE’ IS A MESMERIZING MIND-TEASER.

Jonathan Demme catches the audience in a vise of churning suspense and corrosive wit.

Denzel Washington is terrifically affecting.

Meryl Streep has never been this fierce, this diabolically funny – you can’t take your eyes off her.”

PETER TRAVERS

“NO ONE IN THE AUDIENCE
WILL BE ABLE TO EXHALE
DURING THE LAST
30 MINUTES OF THIS FILM!”

My advice: Go with someone who knows CPR!

Jonathan Demme’s best since ‘The Silence of the Lambs’ and that one won him an Oscar®. Has Meryl Streep ever played Lady Macbeth? She has now.

An incredible performance.”

Working the Door at Blue Gin

Ryan Litrakis, 26, and Melissa Jane Kronfeld, 21, deal in what Kronfeld calls "aggressive hospitality." The host and hostess at Georgetown's poppin' fresh Blue Gin offer service with a smile whether showing folks to their tables or helping them stumble into waiting taxis. Below, a look at the glamorous and not-so glamorous experience of working at a D.C. after-hours enclave.

What kind of a crowd do you see on a typical night?

LITRAKIS: You have to select the clientele; you can't let them select you. It's not about being exclusive, it's about making sure the people that come in have the right attitude ...

KRONFELD: We cater to a mature, 25-and-up crowd. There are a lot of international patrons, politicians ... you never know who you are going to talk to on a given night.

Do people ever try anything ridiculous to be let upstairs?

LITRAKIS: People try to use the "Do you know who I am?" line a lot, [acting] very self important. There [are] also a lot of women batting their eyelashes at you.

THE PLACE TO BE: Blue Gin's clubby, coveted second floor has bottle service.

KRONFELD: I like the people that are brutally honest and say "Look, here's the deal. What do I have to do to get in?"

Let's say a visitor from another planet came down to earth and landed in Blue Gin. What would he think D.C. nightlife is like?

KRONFELD: I think Blue Gin captures the essence of D.C. in terms of the diversity of the people we see here.

What would be the worst experience you've had trying to wrangle patrons on a busy night?

KRONFELD: I had a [drunken] gentleman fall down on me once ... I was flat on my back.

LITRAKIS: Um ... it's not printable.

KATIE ANDRIULLI

IN & OUT: Kronfeld and Litrakis function as the bar's discerning velvet rope.

Television

George Eads runs over his career in "Evel."

JAN THUS

ON TV THIS WEEKEND

ABSOLUTE EVEL George Eads must be a happy man to have reconciled his pay dispute with CBS and "CSI" before the arrival of EVEL KNieVEL (Fri., 8 p.m., TNT) on our TV screens. Otherwise, he'd be drifting helplessly into the Shelley Long night of his career.

Director John Badham pads out a meagerly told tale about the life of the '70s daredevil with some hokey exposition and jarring and inaccurate use of period clothes, hair and music. (Boyish juvenile delinquent Bob Knievel is first seen in 1950 accompanied by "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On," a song Jerry Lee Lewis would not record until 1957.) It's maddening how the film completely fails to capture Knievel's peculiar appeal at a very particular period. All it amounts to is expensive hype for the upcoming jump by Knievel's son Robbie over the deck of the aircraft carrier Intrepid (8 p.m., Saturday, TNT).

N IS FOR CARTOON O'GRADY (Fri., 9 p.m., The N) Teens and tweens find life too bizarre on this sitcom featuring a new theme song by Kelly Osbourne.

AND PSYCHIC TOO MONK (Fri., 10 p.m., USA) Monk (Tony Shaloub) steps aside as Sharona (Bitsy Schramm) suffers from a grisly recurring vision.

CULT CHOICE FORBIDDEN PLANET (Fri., 8 p.m., TCM) Walter Pidgeon, Anne Francis and Leslie Nielsen star in this 1956 outer-space adaptation of Shakespeare's "The Tempest."

WHATCHA YOU GONNA DO? COPS (Sat., 8 p.m., Fox) premiered in

Shaloub

March 1989 and has been on Saturday nights ever since. Nothing if not consistent, "Cops" features a steady diet of pixilated perps, and often at their most inebriated and brazenly self-deceptive. Tonight's "Cops" episodes concern a highway chase (8 p.m.) and a shovel-wielding suspect (8:30 p.m.).

For those who enjoy a parody version of "Cops," Comedy Central offers eight consecutive episodes of the spoof series RENO 911 starting at 8 p.m.

VOTE FOR A FAME-LEECH AMERICAN CANDIDATE (Sun., 9 p.m., Showtime) Montel Williams hosts this a 10-episode "reality" series created by filmmaker R.J. Cutler. Cutler was nominated for an Oscar for "The War Room," his documentary about the 1992 Clinton campaign. "Candidate" pits six men and four women against each other in a series of challenges designed to determine who has the qualities to be president.

In Sunday's episode, the 10 candidates are told to organize public rallies for their faux campaigns. The two who attract the smallest crowds face off in a debate. The remaining eight contestants choose a winner and a loser, who has to quit. If the Democrats had thought of this, Dennis Kucinich would have gone home months ago.

VANNA HITS THE ROAD How do you get people to forget about the unstoppable "Jeopardy" champ? If you're "Wheel of Fortune," you hit the road. WHEEL ON TOUR (10 p.m., Sunday, Travel) follows the "Wheel mobile" as it visits Phoenix, Ariz., in search of contestants.

CULT CHOICE CALL ME MADAM (Sun., 8 p.m., Fox Movie Channel) Ethel Merman, George Sanders and Donald O'Connor star in this 1953 screen adaptation of Irving Berlin's musical, about the Washington foibles of a female ambassador to Lichtenstein. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Familiar Territory

Secretive as ever, Gibbs leads Redskins into camp for first time in 12 years

REDSKINS | Meet Joe Gibbs, the paranoid, lay-down-the-law, workaholic grandfather who loves what he's doing and does it better than anybody.

At least that's the impression you get if you spend a just few minutes with the Washington Redskins players and coaches as the team prepares for the Hall of Fame coach's first training camp in 12 years.

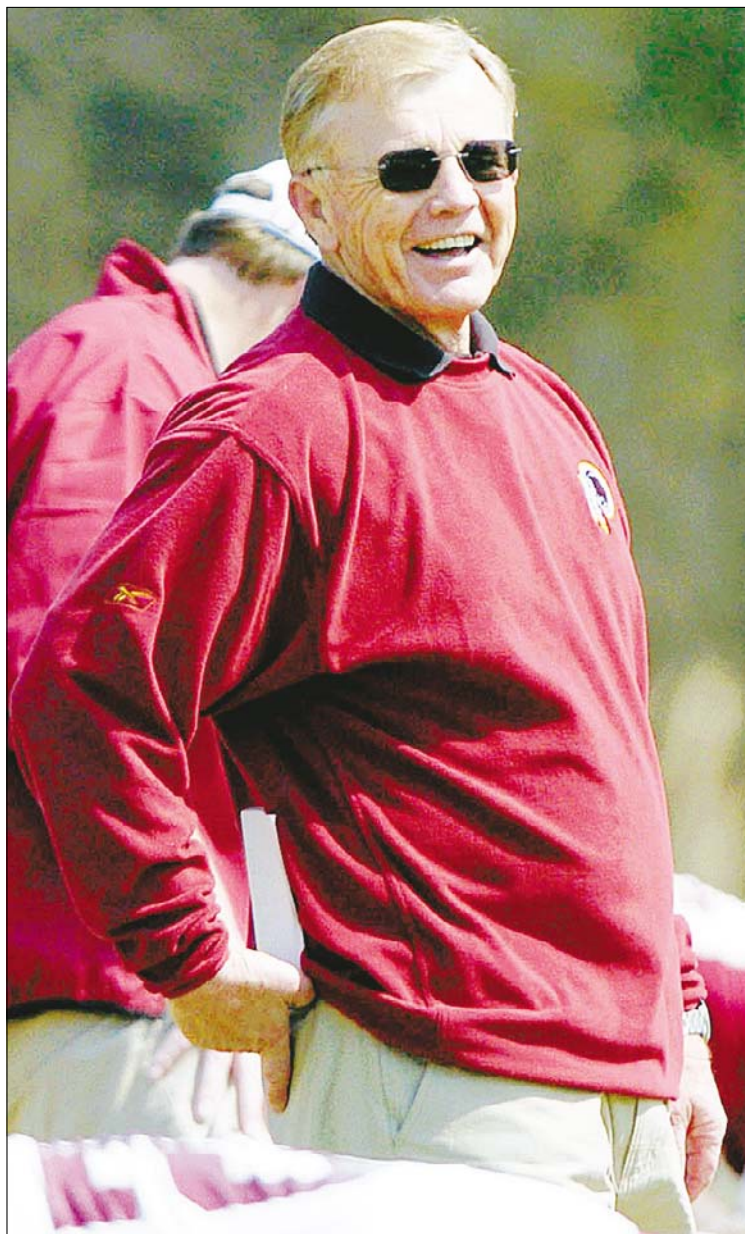

"The one thing about our coaches is I think they have a little bit more fun at doing this than we do — and that's just completely against the rules," center Cory Raymer said.

Gibbs has been on a nonstop emotional high since his announcement eight months ago that he will return to coaching. He has taken on with relish the endless hours of film study needed to get back in sync with the game. He was excited about his first foray into free agency, sounding like a kid going to an open toy store for the first time. The infamous late-night work ethic that led the Redskins to three Super Bowl titles from 1981-92 hasn't missed a beat.

"I don't see a difference," said director of sports medicine Bubba Tyer, the longtime Redskins trainer who came out of retirement so he could work for Gibbs again. "He's as focused and as serious and as determined as ever. At the same time, he has that great sense of humor and humility that he shows. He's the exact same guy. It's fantastic."

Gibbs' return goes public Saturday, when the pads go on and the fans are let in for training camp. What kind of camp should the players expect?

"We're a curfew team," said

"The one thing about our coaches is I think they have a little bit more fun at doing this than we do — and that's just completely against the rules."

REDSKINS CENTER CORY RAYMER

Gibbs, adding the familiar high-pitched chuckle that often accompanies even a serious remark. "I learned after the second Super Bowl. We're not doing the no-curfew deal because I can't trust them."

Gibbs' training camp schedule has a much different look from recent Redskins years.

The coach believes that too much work during camp wears players down late in the season, so he's replaced many of the morning practices with weightlifting sessions. That's the reason he's also starting camp only nine days before the opening exhibition game.

The biggest change, however, stems from Gibbs' desire for secrecy. Only 10 practices will be open to the public. The rest will be closed to everyone, including reporters.

"I think in a lot of sports, giving away secrets is a coaches' shame," Gibbs said. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

ANTHEMS | Chewed Out President Vladimir Putin wants Russian athletes to sing along with the national anthem at sports competitions — and not chew gum. During the recent European Championship, Putin called Russian Olympic Committee chief Leonid Tyagachev and told him to get that message to the Russian soccer players, Echo of Moscow reported. Tyagachev told Russian Soccer Union President Vyacheslav Koloskov, who told the players. "I told them to treat the anthem more seriously," he said. "Other teams not only sing, but expressions appear on their faces that say they already do anything to defeat the enemy. And ours? They chew gum and smile." (AP)

No longer biting mad, Mike Tyson returns to face Danny Williams

BOXING | There's no entourage anymore, no angry tirades and no bizarre new tattoos. Mike Tyson is coming back once again, but this time he's aging, broke and seemingly determined to show his gentler side.

On the verge of his fight with Danny Williams in Louisville, Ky., Tyson can't even bring himself to say anything bad about his opponent.

"I'm trying to be a decent man," Tyson said Wednesday.

Some might say it's way too late for that after years of watching Tyson self destruct. In a larger-than-life career, he's become notorious by biting ears, serving a prison term for rape and threatening to eat Lennox Lewis' children.

Tyson returns to the ring Friday night for the first time in 17 months, more a freak show than serious heavyweight contender. But, perhaps knowing his time is running out at the age of 38, he seems determined not to blow this chance.

"My future seems so much brighter than my past," Tyson said. "I'm a different person than I was 17 months ago."

So far, at least, Tyson has been just that.

The fight will be televised on Showtime pay-per-view, and if enough people buy it, Tyson will be able to pay off some of the $38 million he owes to various creditors.

Tyson has $38 million in debt to pay off.

They won't be paying to see a heavyweight contender, though. They're paying to see the potential train wreck that now surrounds every Tyson fight.

"It's the theater of it, the drama," Showtime executive Jay Larkin said. "He's a very compelling, dramatic individual."

Tyson didn't seem all that compelling at Wednesday's pre-fight news conference. Instead, he was reflective.

"I let the past die. I can't dwell on the past," he said. "If you dwell in the past you're going to be miserable." TIM DAHLBERG (AP)

A Life Less Ordinary

District resident set to run 5K race 2 years after lung transplant

TRANSPLANT GAMES | A lot can happen in two years. Just ask Esther Suss.

In 2000, the longtime District resident developed end-stage emphysema and was staring at a future attached to an oxygen tank.

That option didn't seem appealing, so she began the process of getting a lung transplant. On Aug. 13, 2002, Suss received new a lung and a new lease on life.

This weekend, the 56-year-old will run just over three miles at the U.S. Transplant Games in Minneapolis, Minn.

"Miracles do happen," said Suss, who is taking part in the 5K and 800-meter races, and playing volleyball in the games, which feature more than 2,000 athletes with transplants.

Suss runs between one and three miles six days a week, and does weight training five days a week. Her goal: run the 5K — roughly 3.1 miles — in 12 minutes.

Long term, Suss hopes her story will raise awareness and inspire more people to donate their organs. "It makes you realize how wonderful and horrible things can get," she said of her ordeal. MATT SWENSON (EXPRESS)

United They Play

D.C. All-Stars get a chance to shine at RFK

SOCCER | Considering the Eastern Conference's roster, it seems more than appropriate that RFK Stadium will play host to the ninth annual MLS All-Star game on Saturday.

Four United stars — Jaime Moreno, Alecko Eskandarian, Dema Kovalenko and Freddy Adu — will suit up for Eastern All-Stars, who will be coached by first-year United coach Peter Nowak.

Seven United players were invited to the game, including leading points scorer and forward Moreno (4 goals, 7 assists), who is the only United player on the starting lineup.

On Wednesday, however, United's top defender, Ryan Nelsen, became one of the most recent of seven All-Star roster cancellations after undergoing hernia surgery. Also on the list of no-shows are United All-Star reserve midfielders Ben Olsen

JONATHAN NEWTON/TWP

(quadricep) and Bobby Convey.

Convey was sold last Thursday to English First Division team Reading for an estimated $1.5 million.

MLS All-Star games don't always follow an East vs. West format. For instance, last year's All-Star game featured the top MLS players defeating Mexican First Division team CD Guadalajara, 3-1 in Carson, Calif.

But the league will follow a traditional format this year.

Over the past nine years the East leads the West in All-Star victories with a 3-1-1 record. Their last meeting ended in a six-goal draw in 2001 when Western

All-Star Landon Donovan notched four goals and was honored as the game's MVP.

A Giant Bonus for Manning

No. 1 draft choice gets $20 million for signing contract with New York

PRO FOOTBALL | Top overall draft pick Eli Manning agreed Thursday to a six-year contract with the New York Giants that could be worth $54 million and will pay him a rookie-record $20 million signing bonus.

The quarterback's bonus is believed to be the second highest in NFL history, behind only the $34.5 million the Indianapolis Colts gave his brother, Peyton, in March.

Eli Manning's deal includes $9 million in incentives, Giants spokesman Pat Hanlon said.

The team began training camp practices Thursday in Albany.

New York traded for Manning after he made it clear that he did not want to play for the San Diego Chargers, who had the No. 1 pick in April's draft. The Giants, who had the fourth overall choice, took quarterback Philip Rivers and then traded him to the Chargers along with several draft picks for the rights to Manning. DAVE GOLDBERG (AP)

Williams Chooses Pot Over Football

PRO FOOTBALL | Retired Dolphins running back Ricky Williams said he failed a third drug test for marijuana use, which would cost him a four-game suspension if he decides to return to the NFL, The Miami Herald reported on Thursday.

Williams said that there were "a hundred reasons" for his surprising decision to retire, and his desire to continue smoking marijuana was only one of them. "I didn't quit football because I failed a drug test," he said. "I failed a drug test because I was ready to quit football." (AP)

A-Rod, Varitek Suspended 4 Games

BASEBALL | Alex Rodriguez and Jason Varitek were suspended Thursday for four games each and fined for their roles in Saturday's brawl between the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox.

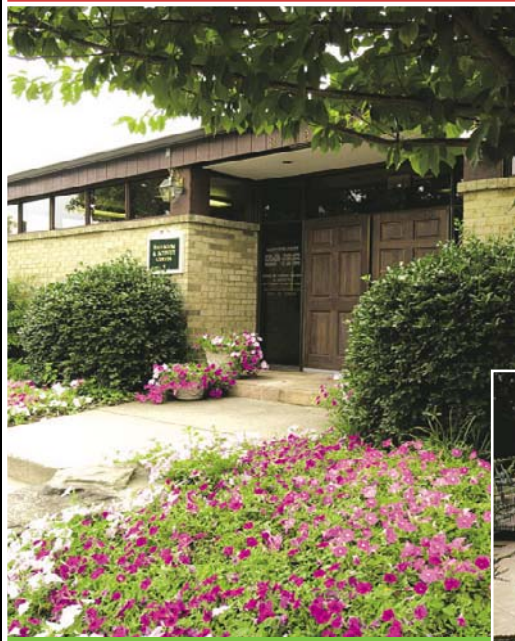

Yankees pitcher Tanyon Sturtze and Red Sox outfielders Gabe Kapler and Trot Nixon were suspended for three games and fined.

Yankees outfielder Kenny Lofton, Red Sox pitcher Curt

Schilling and Red Sox designated hitter David Ortiz were fined. Officials did not immediately say how much the fines would be.

Rodriguez and Sturtze are appealing their suspensions. It was not known if Boston's suspended players would appeal. (AP)

CRITICAL MASS

J. Lo Project at Phase Two. Abort Mission! Abort!

JENNIFER LOPEZ's self-esteem is at an all-time high, she revealed to InStyle magazine in its August issue. "I feel like this is my phase two, like it's a new beginning ... like everything I did before really doesn't matter," she said. "Maybe I was a little bit careless in the past," she added. "I'm not a perfect person. I make mistakes. I just feel like I'm in a better place about who I am. I follow my heart. That's the one thing I can say about myself. And I love that about myself." (AP)

CULTURAL MILESTONES

Usher Urges You to Spend Him

USHER is the proud promoter of the new Usher Raymond IV Debit MasterCard, unveiled Thursday in New York City. The card has no special powers, deals or privileges, but it does have Usher's face on it. As MasterCard ads would say: Priceless. (EXPRESS)

BAD TIMING

Yeah, Like Anyone Will Believe You Now

BRANDY is engaged to pro basketball player Quentin Richardson, People magazine reported Thursday. Richardson surprised Brandy with an 11 1/2-carat diamond ring valued at $1 million at a reception Tuesday at Los Angeles' Century Club. Meanwhile, music producer Robert Smith said last week the two were never wed and that their supposed marriage was a ruse to protect the image of Brandy, who was then pregnant with their daughter, Sy'rai. (AP)

Embassy Crunch With Chunks of Righteousness

The founders of Ben & Jerry's Ice Cream were hauled away by U.S. Secret Service officers in Washington, D.C., on Thursday.

BEN COHEN, second from right, and JERRY GREENFIELD, right, were arrested along with other demonstrators on the steps of the Sudanese embassy. The protesters were demanding stronger international action against the pro-government Arab militias who have been staging a campaign to drive black African farmers out of Sudan over the past 17 months. The protest was part of a series of embassy arrests staged since June 29 to put pressure on the Sudanese government. (EXPRESS)

Kids: Don't Evade Police While Toting Pot in Your Car

KIMORALEE SIMMONS, wife of hip-hop mogul Russell Simmons, faces drug and motor vehicle charges after police said she was driving erratically and ignored the flashing lights of a cruiser for nearly two miles. The 29-year-old Simmons was arrested just after midnight Monday outside the couple's estate in Saddle River, N.J. She was charged with eluding an officer, possessing marijuana, careless driving and operating a vehicle while possessing a drug. The former model, who helps design clothes for the couple's Phat Farm brand, was issued a Municipal Court summons. (AP)

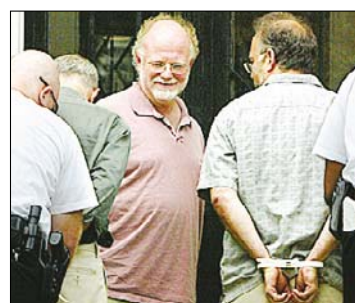

"You're never fully dressed without a smile" — that's Kimora Lee's motto.

WHO CARES? Actors Ewan McGregor and Charley Boorman completed their 20,000-mile round-the-world motorcycle trip on Thursday in New York. Tears of joy were cried. (AP)

B-LISTERS

Kangaroos of the World: You Let Us Down, Anthony

ANTHONY ANDERSON ("Kangaroo Jack," "Barbershop") made a brief court appearance in Tennessee's Shelby County on Thursday to say he understands that he is accused of rape and has a lawyer. The 33-year-old actor was accused by an unidentified woman of luring her into a trailer on the set of his latest movie, "Hustle & Flow," and sexually assaulting her. Also accused is Wayne Witherspoon, an assistant director. (AP)

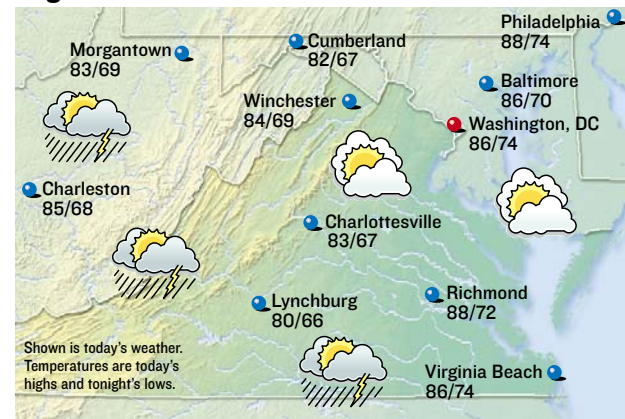

It's Free Cone Day at Sudan's embassy.

Letters

TO THE EDITOR

I THINK MANY OF the headlines and stories in Express are politically biased toward the Republican right. You published a front-page story on July 27 highlighting Teresa Heinz Kerry's telling a reporter to "shove it." However, when Vice President Dick Cheney used an expletive toward a member of Congress, his vulgarity received little media attention in comparison.

Your coverage is an example not only of political bias, but also of gender discrimination. Instead of teetering on the edge of misogyny with the Republican right-wing, why don't you publish an article that highlights the good work of American women?

—MARILEE KANE
Washington, D.C.

IN RESPONSE TO K. Blackwell's letter on people keeping Metro doors open (July 29), I'd say that you can't blame the "selfish" riders who are trying to "catch" a train. Sometimes the train "right behind" is a 15- to 20-minute wait — even during rush hour. And then the trains are so packed that you have to wait again. Who can blame riders who just want to get home?

—CARLA SUNSERI
Germantown, Md.

The Duplex | Glenn McCoy

Horoscope | Stella Wilder

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Developments may take you by surprise, but you can remain in control if you keep your emotions in check. Overreactions are to be avoided.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Put your faith in your own abilities and look toward the future. Dwelling on the past will only hold you back.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Someone you know well may prove to be something different from their outward appearance. You can profit from such surprises.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Take the time to explore your environment, as completely and as carefully as you can. You may stumble upon a way out by accident.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You have a plan and someone close to you is willing to help you carry it out. The results may prove profitable to all concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You won't be able to predict certain circumstances that will affect you seriously. Be on your guard and adapt quickly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Your own versatility will be on display, much to your delight. There will come a time, however, when you must give credit to someone else.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) — Give your career a once-over; you may discover that you've been ignoring an important aspect of your own personality.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Others will try to persuade you to abandon a losing proposition, but you'll want to hang on in the end.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Someone who has played a meaningful role in your own daily affairs may vanish from the scene suddenly, but only temporarily.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — What was lost can be found, but you've got to be willing to admit that you were not as careful as you had claimed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — You may be enjoying some time off right now, but that is no reason to avoid the few key decisions that call to you again and again.

LIVE ONLINE

Campaign '04

From washingtonpost.com/liveonline

Democratic National Committee Chairman TERRY MCAULIFFE was online Thursday to discuss the convention and the upcoming election.

Will you explain Sen. John Kerry's military voting record in the Senate? What compelled him to vote against the $87 billion for Iraq?

I think Kerry voted against the bill because what he didn't want is for the money to go to Halliburton. There were no guarantees that this money would be spent wisely for our troops.

How much of an issue will the prospect of the reinstatement of the draft be on college campuses?

I think it is an issue that young people should consider. Right now if we have another major conflict in another theater we don't have the troops to commit to that, and it is something that the young people in this nation should consider as a possibility. And this information I get from generals.

Pundits say that the Democrats' plan is to minimize the criticism of President Bush in order not to alienate "swing" voters or "middle America." If that's the case, it underestimates the anger Americans feel about Bush's decision to sacrifice American lives in a war that was based on patently false pretenses. Why isn't this the center of the Democrats' platform?

Our platform spent 50 percent on the issues of national security, which is up from the traditional 20 percent. Everyone knows that Bush misled America and the world, and now they are looking to John Kerry to tell us how he will fix it.

Do you plan to have a "truth squad" at the Republican National Convention?

Yes, we will be there in full force.
